Dear Neighbour

Construction Update – Upcoming Works at the former Royal Women’s Hospital site

We would like to provide you with the following construction update associated with works at the former Royal Women’s Hospital site.

We will continue our demolition works including slab and structural demolition and installation of scaffolding to the Swanston Street gantry.

We will be installing footings for a temporary power kiosk along Swanston Street (kiosk to be installed at a later date).

We’ll commence demolition to the roof of LAB14 building and commence construction of new site sheds on the ground floor of the Old Royal Women’s Hospital carpark in Cardigan Street.

For users of the Royal Women’s Hospital Car Park, please be advised that from Monday 7th May onwards the after-hours door (via Cardigan St) will not be accessible for public use until further notice. (See attached plan below for alternate exits). The door will be repurposed for use as part of the site works. Car spaces along the North wall and the North-West corner will be occupied for site sheds for an extended period, as per the plan attached.

We apologise in advance for any disruption or inconvenience these works may cause.

Some upcoming milestones in the demolition are approaching with the removal of scaffolding on site planned for early June and demolition down to the ground floor in early August.

We thank you for your cooperation and understanding while these important works are being carried out as we develop what will be Australia’s leading innovation precinct.
